

Session 6

Session 6 - We reach Marshreach and find several farmers arguing with an older farmer named Hemlon. Hemlon has a sort of rot in part of his field, so he made offerings to the God of Plagues. The other farmers stole those offerings and want to bum the field to save their own farms. I tried to make a compromise, but neither side would listen. We headed to the town hall, where we met Elmar, who told the farmers to give the offerings back. We decided to check out Hemlon's farm and tried to investigate the field, but all we found was animal hair and no other leads. I kept a few samples of the crops for future research and I suggested Hemlon try and keep the rot away from the rest of the field, and if the offerings didn't work, burn the rot. He agreed and we left. We spent the night at the inn with the knights, and in the morning, we get supplies. During the night, Aline wanders off and pays for a sex worker. While shopping, we see smoke in the distance and head to it. We find that Hemlon's field with the rot on fire. We help him out and go to confront the other farmers on his behalf. Once we reach one of them, they reveal that the whole field was covered in rot, seemingly overnight, so they did what they had to do to save their own farms. Since I believe in justice, I wanted Blorg to break the man's nose or pay Hemlon back. The farmer refused and Blorg bit part of the man's ear off. We decide to leave Marshreach and head out on the road to Wealstowatch. While in the swamp, Velma saw a deer, so went to go hunt it. After shooting at it and getting it down, I found that its belly was wide open, seemingly undead. I put the thing out of its misery and reported back to the group. During the nights on the road to Wealstowatch, I learn more about Velma and Alina. I told them that my family are a long line of blood magic users, but didn't go too far into detail. Blorg is always an open book and Gon remains a mystery. We make it to the old battlefield, where Velma and I scavenge, and she finds something..
